Once, something that might seem impossible
really happened.

God—who made
stars and planets

and mountains
and trees

and you—became a baby.

He was still God, but he was also a real baby who cried and made messes and had to learn to crawl and walk. This was not what anyone expected.

People knew he was coming. Some expected a king.

Some expected a warrior.

But most didn't think about it at all.
